

MATTHEW CRAMPSEY -
WHAT A TIME TO BE ALIVE

What A Time To Be Alive 1 .mp3

The Track is called ‘What a Time to be Alive’. I wrote it 4 years ago but then because I was in college and moved away for a year I didn’t get a chance to record it but thankfully now its ready for release. The official release date is the 21/08/2020.

About the song

The chorus was inspired on Christmas Day when my mum noticed how kids didn’t go outside on Christmas morning anymore because presents had all gone in the direction of electronics, phones, tablets , consoles etc.

The verses are basically just things I’ve learned about life and the world over the years. It’s strange because I wrote it four years ago but it’s still massively relevant today. Its not designed to be a pop song or to go flying up the charts, Its just something I’ve always felt should have been said and I’m delighted to finally start having a platform of listeners and supportive people such as yourself to be able to feel comfortable about releasing something like this.

It’s my third original single release. The first being ‘Home’ and the second being ‘Something As Simple’ and I’m excited to see how people react to this release.

A bit of info about myself.

I’m a singer songwriter based in Donegal and this single will be my third original independent release. I studied music in the North West Regional College in Derry before moving to Leeds for a year where I Graduated with a Degree in Popular Music from Leeds College of Music. Over the years I’ve been very lucky to support acts such as Ryan McMullan and Danny O Reilly (The Coronas). My goal has always been to be able to make a living from my own original music and I’m hoping that as the COVID restrictions change or lift over the coming years that this will be a possibility. I have two more singles scheduled for release this year and then an EP planned for 2021. My Dad is also a singer /songwriter "Shunie Crampsey
